

Environmental Humanities

Workshop for PhDs & Advanced Masters Students

Posthumanism for the Anthropocene

January 15, 2021 09:00-11:15

Prof. Hannes
Bergthaller

National Chung Hsing
University, Taiwan

&

Prof. Eva
Horn

University of Vienna, Austria

Eva Horn and Hannes Bergthaller define the Anthropocene not only as a crisis, but also as “an interruption” that indicates an “ecological threshold” and “gives a name to the insight that humans are profoundly changing the ecology of the planet” (1-2).

In a workshop for PhD candidates and advanced Masters students, Horn and Bergthaller come together to expand upon foundational propositions formulated in The Anthropocene: Key Issues for the Humanities (Routledge 2019) by exploring the critical intersection of theories of posthumanism and the Anthropocene.

The emergent Environmental Humanities class of the Graduate School of Humanities is delighted to welcome this critical conversation. Please register via lena.pfeifer@uni-wuerzburg.de. The readings and the Zoom link will be sent to you after registration.